NOV 1 7 1973

Jim, When I complete the long section on Nixon as a totalitarian, before getting into a direct case of committee whitewashing and the testimony leading and relating to the Hunt and related parts, I'll be doing a long chapter on Nixon's psychology, with illustrations rather than merely alleging he is paranoid. An editorial section article WxPost 11/11/73 refers to a LATimes piece by a UA professor who says Nixon always makes strong statements about how right he is when he is about to do or say what proves the opposite. If you have this, I'd appreciate a copy. However, if you do not remember it and retrieval would be a problem, please forget it...UH returns this a.m. He has done the work for which he came, on noise, and has read all that Lil has retyped. He is impressed with the mustering of a case as far as I've gone, esp. on the covering up and the police state plans, which I regard as a "high crime" under the old British law from which the phrase comes. He agrees that aside from the problems of which you are aware and the enormity of the mtaerial, I have work to do on the beginning because I was then preparing for a German book to have been delivered five weeks later.
